Dear Sir or Madame,

The Immaculate Conception Science Olympiad team is currently training for its fifth year of competition. Science Olympiad is an enrichment program at Immaculate Conception that joins science-inclined middle school students with enthusiastic parents and coaches for a season that stretches from fall through early spring. Competitions are like academic track meets consisting of a series of 23 individual and team events that cover a range of scientific disciplines, including biology, chemistry, earth science, physics, astronomy, engineering and technology. For the past two years, the IC team has qualified to compete in the state tournament that is held at The Ohio State University. At Immaculate Conception, Science Olympiad is science mentorship at its best!

We invite you to participate in the 2009-2010 Immaculate Conception Science Olympiad season as a donor. Our Science Olympiad team relies on donations to develop its training resources (purchase of sample test packets, building supplies, reference books, etc.) and to offset expenses related to tournament travel. It is a goal of the coaching staff to ensure that no interested student declines to be involved due to cost to his or her family.

The National Governor's Association Innovation America initiative report outlines a call to action to support STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math) education outside the classroom via expanded learning opportunities that develop and maintain student interest. Science Olympiad is specifically mentioned as part of this initiative. Help us inspire middle school students in our own community through a monetary donation to the Immaculate Conception Science Olympiad team. These young students are our future innovators, scientists and problem solvers.
